

What is common to complex database queries and beautiful artistic masterpieces? Artificial intelligence can generate both from simple English prompts, and large language models have been instrumental in these achievements. I will show how we can understand the patterns such models find in data using systematic meaning representations, and how to create these representations so we can adapt language models across languages and cultures.